

Many people see Emergency Departments (ED) as a quick way to access medical care. However, the ED should only be used in cases involving life-threatening medical emergencies. Visiting an ED for minor injuries or illnesses could end up costing you more if your care could have been provided at a walk-in clinic, urgent care center or doctor's office.

There are healthcare options available that treat minor to moderate conditions. This list can help you understand your options and help you decide which provider you should visit next time you need medical care.
